CONVENTION TO END TONIGHT

George M. Burnie, State Secretary of Sunday Schools, Will Make Principal Address,

BEGINS AT SEVEN-THIRTY

Address by C. M. Yocum on Missionary Training of Pupils One of Best Talks Today.

Although the attendance today at the annual Rush county Sunday school convention held at St. Paul's M. E. church was not very large, Sunday school workers from many parts of the county who were present felt that the crowd for the meeting tonight would be larger because a very attractive program is offered for that time.

The principal address will be delivered tonight at 7:45 o'clock by George Burnie, secretary of the State Sunday School association, who also spoke at the morning and afternoon sessions today. The devotional exercises will be conducted tonight by the Rev. A. W. Jamieson of the U. P. church and will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

The subject of Mr. Burnie's address tonight will be "Our Slogan." In this talk he will outline the plans of the state association for the work in Indiana. He will set up the aims and standards of the association, which every Sunday school in Indiana is expected to strive for during the next year.

One of the most instructive talks of the convention was given this morning by the Rev. C. M. Yocum, pastor on the Main Street Christian church, on the subject, "Missionary Instruction in the Sunday School." He dwelt at length on the great importance of missionary training in the Sunday school.

He drew a line of distinction between the Sunday school and the church. In the Sunday school, he said, the training was very important because the children were then in the formative stage and what they learned was of great value to them. He declared that preaching in the church to grown-up people was different because then it ceased to be training and was more in the nature of exhortation. When people have reached maturity, he said, it is not with such ease that they are trained. They can only be urged to lead the right kind of a life.

The Rev. Mr. Yocum made his address much more interesting by citing some excellent examples. An intelligent discussion of the subject followed his talk.

Mr. Burnie told something of the adult bible class movement throughout Indiana. He showed what an astounding growth the movement had had and said that it had contributed a great deal to increasing the attendance at Sunday schools where the movement had been tried.

Miss Elizabeth Flint this afternoon talked on "The International Convention." She gave her impressions of the great meeting held at Chicago last June, and which she attended. She told of the hand work of pupils from a number of Sunday schools which was displayed at the convention.

Mr. Burnie this afternoon talked on the program of the Sunday school. He told what should be the main work of the Sunday schools and the methods to pursue in order to gain the ends desired.

Discussions of the subjects of each address always followed the talks and were very helpful to the

FUNERAL HELD YESTERDAY

Miss Rebecca Reid Expires at Her Home in Glenwood After Fall.

The funeral services of Miss Rebecca Reid, who died Tuesday afternoon at her home in Glenwood, were conducted Thursday afternoon at the late residence and burial took place in the cemetery in Glenwood. Miss Reid, who had been an invalid for many years, fell from her chair several days ago and this brought on heart trouble which caused her death. She was well known in the eastern part of the county and had lived for years with her brother, Jack Reid in Glenwood. Besides her brother, Miss Reid leaves no near relatives.

AGREES TO PAY BILL AND HE IS SET FREE

Dan Elliott Gives Promise to Mrs.
Nora Ross and Case Against

PAYS $2.50 AS A STARTER

The trial of Dan Elliott, charged with beating a board bill, did not materialize this afternoon in Squire Kratzer's court for the very good reason that it was compromised. The charge was filed by Mrs. Nora Ross, manager of the Main Street house, who alleged that Elliott owed her $38 for board. Elliott was arrested last Sunday at the home of a young woman in Richland township.

Elliott agreed to pay Mrs. Ross and the court costs if the proceedings were dropped. He at first denied owing her the amount she alleged. Elliott succeeded in raising $2.50 which was applied to the bill and they have his promise to pay the rest. Elliott is a cement finisher and has been employed here during the past summer. The docket in the squire's office shows that the case was continued.

SUPPOSED THIEF MAKING "GETAWAY"

Alleged Robber Who Frightened People at James Baldwin's Home
Was Being Chased.

ROY ADAMS WAS AFTER HIM

A supposed burglar at the home of James Baldwin, corner of Third and Perkins street, last night proved to be a man, who was trying to get away from Roy Adams, and whom Adams suspected of inducing his wife to leave home with him. Adams located the man on the down-town streets, and in the chase that followed the man ran onto the rear porch at the Baldwin home and escaped Adams. Baldwins heard the man on the porch and notified the police. The police are certain that no one attempted to get in as the description tallied with the man Adams told the police he was looking for.

Mrs. Adams left home about three days ago and was located at the Grand Hotel last night. Adams believes that this man induced his wife to leave. Mrs. Adams left last night in company with her father, Tom Barnes, of near Gings.

FUND CLIMBS UP BY SIX BARRELS

Grand Total Now is 126 and Mark
Set For The Close of The Fund
Next Monday is 150.

WHAT MILROY ACCOMPLISHES

Committee of Sixteen Men, Raises
175 Barrels There in Short
Time—Will Make Car Load.

The Belgians relief fund today climbed up to one hundred and twenty-six barrels.

It now looks as if the fund would reach at least a hundred and fifty before next Monday evening when the fund closes. The hope is expressed that it will at least reach this mark. The goal for Rushville and vicinity was set at a car load, but a hundred and fifty will be fifty barrels short of a car load.

Milroy has set an example that it would be well for Rushville to emulate. A hundred and seventy-five barrels of flour have been raised down there and the committee in charge hopes to make it a car load before very many days have elapsed. There seems to be no doubt but that Milroy will get a car load.

Flour was solicited for the Milroy fund. A committee of sixteen men got together and mapped out a campaign. They all went out and worked not only in Milroy but around Milroy. The results of their efforts indicates that the sixteen men were amply rewarded. No such an effort was made here, however, else the fund might at least have equalled that being raised in Milroy and vicinity.

So far as is known no personal solicitations have been made for the relief fund here. People have been asked through the Daily Republican to contribute to keep the people of a destitute land from starving this winter. It rests solely with the people whatever they do. The appeal is put to them and they can settle in their own mind whether or not they can afford to give.

Six barrels were added to the fund today, all in single barrel contributions, there being no cash contributions under five dollars. The barrels were given by Fraternal Order of Eagles, No. 1,073, E. L. Aiken, F. J. Martin, A. T. Junken, Mrs. B. F. Miller's class of the Main Street Christian Sunday school and a fifth barrel added by C. G. Clark & Sons in accordance with the agreement that they would give one barrel for every twenty-five contributed.

THOUGHTS ARE ON CHRISTMAS

With Thanksgiving Over, Good Fellows Are Organizing For Strenuous Work That is Ahead.

PLENTY OF IT TO BE DONE

High Sign of the League is Simple Enough and It's Not a Bit of Trouble to Join.

"I am willing to be a Good Fellow."

That's all that is required to join the League. It's the high sign, the pass word, the initiation fee, the dues; in fact, it's the whole works. Just make up your mind you are a Good Fellow. The rest will be easy to do.

The first step on the program is to drop a card or a letter to the Good Fellows editor of the Daily Republican and declare your intentions. Just say how many, that's all. And before long you will get the names of the number of kiddies you mentioned. It is such a simple matter. This paper happens to be headquarters for the league because it has to have headquarters. There are no records. Your name is not kept. "There isn't anything in it for anybody except the youngster who is going to be helped, and there is more in it for him than we could begin to tell you.

It is hard work. The privilege of being a Good Fellow, like every other thing worth having or being, doesn't come without an effort. You must hunt around in parts of the city where the streets are few, and must knock at many a humble door, and ask many a question that isn't easy to ask, and see many a thing that isn't easy to look at.

You will probably have experiences that you will remember a long time, with a tightening at the throat. You will come away feeling a little depressed, maybe. You say: "I wouldn't have believed that such conditions were possible here in Rushville."

Thanksgiving has passed now and thoughts naturally center about Christmas. Especially are the little folks thinking about that happiest of all seasons of the year. Just how many awaken Christmas morning with an empty stocking staring at them depends on the size of the Good Fellows League this year.

There were some Good Fellows at work yesterday. One Good fellow particular made twenty-five hearts happy Thanksgiving day. He's one of those sort of Good Fellows who are on the job the whole year round. He is one of those Good Fellows who has been anxious that the Daily Republican be headquarters for the League this year. He ought to be an example to every person in Rushville who is able and should be a Good Fellow.

It is important that you get in the line-up. Even though you help some little folks Christmas, some that you are especially anxious shall not pass Christmas cheerless it would be a favor if you let the League know about it. Of course, the world would not shift its axis or anything of that sort if more than one Good Fellow visited the same child. But there are going to be lots of tots this year to remember and all of you Good Fellows will agree that it would be better to see that all needy little ones have a happy Christmas than to remember some twice and leave others out altogether.

William Lewis, et al., have filed a partition suit against Tabitha Lewis, in the circuit court. Eighty acres of land is involved in the suit.

COOK TAKES OFFICE TODAY

Man Who Was "Storm Point" of Last Campaign Qualifies.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Nov. 27.—Homer L. Cook, the "storm point" of the recent campaign, took office today, succeeding Lew G. Ellingham of Decatur as secretary of state. Cook is the second newly-elected Democrat to take office. The severest attacks were made on Cook in the campaign. It was alleged that he was indirectly responsible for the juggling of bills through the recent legislature. Mr. Ellingham is editor of the Decatur Democrat. He has completed his term without having been made the target of criticism.

REYNOLDS TRIAL ENDS SUDDENLY

Judge Gray Sustains Motion of Defense to Instruct Jury to Find
For Connersville Man.

COURT REVERSES HIMSELF

(By United Press.)

Connersville, Ind., Nov. 27.—The Ivy Reynolds murder trial was brought to a sudden close today when Judge George L. Gray sustained the motion of the defense instructing the jury the defendant not structing the jury to find the defendant not guilty. The court ruled that the state had not established that Mrs. Reynolds was murdered nor that Reynolds was guilty even if his wife had been murdered.

This reversed his ruling of Wednesday. Reynolds wept when the verdict was given. Those in the court room gave no sign of approval.

TO GET INCREASE IN WATER RATES

City Officials Are Confident After Hearing Before State Service Commission Today.

RETURN THIS AFTERNOON

City officials, including City Attorney Kiplinger, Superintendent of the water and light plant, A. T. Mahin, Councilmen Brann and Seudder, and Mayor Bebout arrived in the city shortly after one o'clock this afternoon after attending the hearing of the city on the petition to raise the water rates before the public service commission in Indianapolis.

The hearing did not take long as no one appeared before the commission to oppose the proposed increase. The commission did not make a finding today but intimated that the city could expect it by the first of next week. The city officials were well pleased with the hearing and believe that the petition will go through. The commission told the city officials that it believed that the petition did not call for a large enough increase and that the city would likely be back again asking for another rise as the revenue would not be enough under the proposed rise to pay expenses.

From this the officials believe the commission will grant the increase or make the rates even higher than the petition asks for. The city would raise the rates from $1.50 to $1.85 per cubic feet and establish a minimum scale.

CAUGHT LIKE A GIANT IN TRAP

Germans Are in Position of Their Own Making and Slowly Bleeding to Death Says Correspondent

THE ALLIES ARE SATISFIED

Extension of German Line to the Sea
To Force Issue Leaves Her
Worse off Than Ever

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

(Copyright 1914 by United Press) With the French Army at the Front, via Paris, Nov. 24.(Delayed)

Caught like a giant in a trap, largely of his own making, Germany is slowly bleeding to death, without any apparent means of extrication.

After three weeks observation on the western battlefield, this, it appears to me, is the situation at present. I am convinced that the allies are highly satisfied with the situation and are perfectly content to let Germany wear herself out. From a notably trustworthy source, I gather that Germany is very much dissatisfied but is unable now either to force the issue or to withdraw.

The only remedy for Germany is a decisive battle which she is unable to force, despite constant endeavors, owing to her extended lines and the consequent impossibility of concentration.

In an endeavor to force the issue in the west the German lines were farther extended to the sea. This left her worse off than ever. The necessity of shortening the line is imperative, yet if it is shortened it will create a bad impression in Germany. The move would be taken as a sign of failure. Such a realignment would also expose the German flanks to powerful smashes from the allies. Germany is, therefore, condemned to hold on, despite the urgency of her turning loose and the realization—that she is growing weaker while the allies are growing stronger. The allies have nothing to gain by immediate action. Germany has everything.

Officers are enthusiastic over the tactics of French and British commanders. One foreign neutral observer likened the allies and Germans to two heavyweight boxers, each blocking the onslaughts of the other until one is weakened by his own exertions and the stronger lands a knockout blow.

Big Girls Are Stealing Their Fashions from the Little Tots

BY MARGARET MASON
(Written for United Press.)

A cunning frock Dad got for Dot With other dots strewn o'er it He got a suit for little Bill Then got a big bill for it.

New York Nov. 27.—With their skirts up to their shoe tops and their frocks hanging loose and waistless from their shoulders like a six year old, all the big girls seem to be stealing their fashion ideas from the little girls these days. Naturally then it is up to the little girls to be very well dressed indeed since they become miniature models a la mode for the grownups.

At the recent Fashion fete models for the American made maid of tender years were as important a feature of the exhibit as were any of those for the older members of the American beauty family.

One lovely little model of softest old rose velvet was cut in one piece and hung straight from the little low round neck to the knees. Hand embroidery in different shades of rose silk bordered the neck and sleeves which were elbow length and also was carried out down the front of the dress in a panel effect.

The other little dress of knife pleated which chiffon hung from the round baby neck in a long blouse effect to the hips where it was girded in by a garland of tiny pink ribbon rose buds. These finished the short sleeves and the neck also.

Embroidered net over flesh colored silk makes a party frock to bring delight to the heart of any little woman. Let three tiny ruffles of the net outline the short waist the elbows, sleeves and the short full skirt and her cup will brim over with joy even as her frock fluffs over with frills.

Quaint long waisted kindergarten and play frocks of tan or blue linen embroidered bright reds, greens and blues on the little turn over collar, turn back cuffs and low wide belt which holds in the box pleats of the frock are very charming. Little white dresses hanging full from yokes smocked in pink or blue are also artistic and picturesque.

Childhood is coated this year preferably in velvet or corduroy. Like the grownups and whether they took it from the grownups or vice versa is a question. Sand and putty color velvet or corduroy is very popular

NATHAN HERR, 57, DIED LAST NIGHT

Rushville Man Succumbed After Operation For Gall Stones Failed to Give Him Relief.

WIDOW AND 4 CHILDREN LEFT

Nathan Herr, 57 years old, a well known resident of this city, died last night at ten o'clock at the sanatorium following an operation for gall stones. Mr. Herr underwent an operation about ten days ago and since that time has been in a serious condition, little hope being maintained for his recovery. He had been in ill health for the past four months and submitted to the operation in the hopes of regaining his health. Mr. Herr was employed at the Innis-Pearce company for twenty-five years and for the last four years had worked at the Case Mill.

Besides his widow, Mr. Herr is survived by four children, Mrs. John C. Walton, Mrs. C. Bert Buell, Thomas Herr and Mrs. Joseph Buschmohle.

The funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the St. Mary's Catholic church by the Rev. M. W. Lyons and burial will take place in Calvary cemetery.

Judge Megee granted the petition of Annie A. Nolan, administratrix of the estate of Richard Nolan, deceased, authorizing the making of a deed. Will L. Newbold was appointed commissioner to execute and deliver the deed.

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store. (This is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you value your hair, you should get rid of dandruff at once, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it.

Can't Kill Town

Do not let yourself believe that the mail-order houses will ever kill Rushville. If any considerable number of the people in this town and in this vicinity persist in the habit of sending their money away from home it will, of course, keep this town from ever being anything more than it is, and may even set it backward. But there will always be a town of some kind here.

And the reason is this: a town, after all, is something more than a collection of houses. It is a product not only of the brain but of the heart. The pioneers saw that this was a natural place for a town to be. They settled here; their children were born here; and here most of their children's children were born. The foundations of this town are deeper than the sills that support the houses; they reach down into the hearts of the people of this community.

The mail-order patron does not lack patriotism so much as he lacks foresight. He probably has never thought very much about it. He has thought only of his individual case. It didn't seem to make very much difference to him if he spent ten dollars, or a hundred dollars, or two hundred dollars, away from home. But ten two hundreds are two thousand; and a hundred two hundreds are twenty thousand; and $20,000 taken out of the pockets of this town, if such should happen to be the case would hit it fairly hard. It may not be $20,000 that goes out of this community to the mail-order houses each year, or it may be a great deal more. The mail-order patron himself is the best judge of that. He knows at least, if he will look at the front page of his catalog, that great buildings are built in Chicago and elsewhere out of the great profits of these concerns. He knows, also, if he will stop to think, that every brick in those structures is a brick taken out of the upbuilding of this town and other towns like it.

These great buildings were not built by selling below cost. They were built by selling at a good round profit. They were built not at the expense of the men who built them but at the expense of the small towns of this country. They were paid for with money that other wise might have been employed in building up the business houses in Rushville and places like it. Whether the mail-order patron saved anything thereby is doubtful, quality considered; whether the town lost anything is certain.

But neither the mail-order house nor the mail-order patron can kill Rushville absolutely. There will always be a considerable number of people who will prefer getting value at home to getting stung abroad. They will use both foresight and sense. These will form the nucleus of the town of the future just as they form the backbone of the town of the present. And, in the future as in the past, they will go ahead helping to provide the children of the mail-order patron with schools, his family, with churches, his vehicles, with roads and streets, his needs with his necessities, while he fritters away his means elsewhere. He will continue to reap the harvest whether he helps to sow and cultivate or not.

A Democratic Viewpoint

The following editorial from the Newcastle Times, written by W. S. Chambers, the editor, who is sixth district Democratic chairman, gives a Democratic viewpoint of James E. Watson's relation to the Republican party in Indiana:

If you want to give a Republican newspaper or politician the nightmare just mention the fact that Jim Watson will likely be the next candidate for United States senator. They make all manner of excuses why Jim should not ask for the place, but not one of these brave sheets has the nerve to squarely oppose him. He is the back bone of the Republican party in Indiana, and they know it. He is the power that writes platforms, makes up tickets and dictates the conduct of a campaign. If Jim wants to be a candidate for United States senator, and the G. O. P. has no abler man in the state, a lot of these newspapers, the Ft. Wayne News included that are now snapping at his heels will stick their tails between their legs and meekly follow Senator Jim.

It is largely to the credit of the brains and the organizing ability of Jim Watson that the Republican party of Indiana was able to pull itself together and make the showing it did in the recent campaign. Pretending to oppose Watson a lot of these two by four politicians have the courage to stand by their real leader and the one to whom they look for guidance to lead them from the wilderness in which the party has been wandering the last five years. If Jim Watson thinks a Republican can be elected Senator from Indiana two years hence he will be that candidate. Men who turn down a place in the United States senate are very rare, none having ever been discovered in Indiana.

ESTABLISHED IN

Carranza's Government is Formally Opened When Last of Military Forces Reach Port.

MEXICO CITY IS BOXED UP

Every Line of Communication is Cut
Off With the Idea That Peace
May be Forced

(By United Press.)

Vera Cruz, Mex., Nov. 27.—General Venustiano Carranza today formally established his government of Mexico in eVra Cruz. The last of the Carranza military forces marched into the seaport during the early morning, bringing the strength of the garrison up to about 8,500 men, foot, guns and horse.

The Carranza lieutenants said today they are plentifully supplied with artillery and ammunition. With the gunboats Brazo and Zaragosa lying in the harbor, and resources at hand and expected from customs receipts they insist Carranza holds the whip hand in the Mexican situation and can compel the acceptance of most of his demands in the final adjustment of the Southern Republic's affairs. They expressed doubt that either Villa or Zapata would attempt to capture the city by force of arms.

Rivalries which exist between these leaders, Carranzistas believe, would compel both to retain large forces in the capital, thus leaving insufficient strength even if they combined in an expeditionary attempt to take Vera Cruz.

Carranza emphasized today that he is satisfied to stand pat with the hand he now holds and await developments. By Carranza's orders, every possible line of communication to Mexico City has been cut with the idea that whoever holds the capital will be forced to suggest peace parleys.

In the meantime the military today set about gathering up the rule of the city where General Funston left off. As Carranza promised, he announced officially today that Mexicans employed under the city government established by Funston would be retained in their places. The populace continued enthusiastic today over Carranza. Every appearance of the leader on the streets was a signal for outbursts of cheering.

Negotiations Are Again in Progress

WHAT WASHINGTON HEARS

Report Rear U. S. Guard Was Fired on as it Left Vera Cruz is Being Investigated

(By United Press.)

Washington, Nov. 27.—Negotiations are again in progress between Villa and Carranza for a peaceful solution of the Mexican problem. This was said here today to be the real reason why Consul John R. Silliman went to Vera Cruz to join Carranza. Leaders of the various Mexican factions are reported desirous of making one additional effort to get together before a final battle for mastery of the nation.

Meanwhile Mexico has four heads. Carranza rules in Vera Cruz; Zapata in Mexico City; Villa within a day's march of the capital and Gutierrez at Queretaro.

The permanent committee of the Aguas Calientes commission, headed by Provisional President Gutierrez is reported in official dispatches as due to leave Queretaro today for Mexico City. So far Villa is still outside of the Mexican capital but he and Zapata are in accord, the state department says, and his entry into the city is expected very soon.

Confidential state department advices today from Consuls Silliman and Canova and from Special Agent Carothers, with Villa all agree that Mexico at the present time is more tranquil than in a long time.

The war department was today investigating an unconfirmed report from Galveston that as the American rear guard left Vera Cruz, it was fired on.

DISTRICT MEETING
TO BE AT RICHMOND

Knights of Pythias Lodges Will Hold Annual Session Some Time in February, 1915.

SOME FROM HERE TO ATTEND

The request for the Richmond lodge of Knights of Pythias to entertain the annual district meeting of the order has been acted on favorably, according to Roy C. Fry, of Richmond, district deputy. The meeting will be held some time next February and between six and seven hundred knights are expected to attend. It is likely a number from here will be present.

The district includes the counties of Wayne, Randolph, Union, Rush, Fayette and Henry. In the district there are thirty-seven lodges.

Mr. Fry said today that the exact date in February when the meeting will be held has not been decided on, but the Pythian delegates will be in Richmond a day and a night.

"Robert A. Brown of Franklin, grand chancellor of the state, and other grand lodge officers will attend this meeting," Mr. Fry said, "and I expect it to be one of the largest attended meetings ever held in the district."

"Several important lodge matters will be up for discussion but the program has not yet been arranged."

GAME IS COMMERCIALIZED

Bombardier Wells and Frank Moran Will Box For Charity in London, Dec. 3.

BY HAL SERIDAN.
(Written for United Press.)

New York, Nov. 27.—Two sport writers were talking over recently the merits of football and baseball as entertainment projects. One was a fanatic in favor of baseball and the compiling of many box scores had not withered or staled his infinite love for the diamond game.

The other was equally warm in telling of his liking for football. Sitting in a press box with a November breeze held no terrors for him.

They were on their way to a town not far from New York to "cover" a big football game for their papers.

Said the football lover:

"What I like about football is that it is a good clean game. When you go to a game between two college teams you do not feel that commercialism enters into the contest."

The baseball man said nothing but smiled one of those quiet little smiles which speak of much wisdom.

They sat down in a crowded corner of the day coach. Around them a host of humanity seemed to fill every square foot of sitting and standing room.

Presently a newsboy came through the train.

Three football writer bought three evening papers, five cents each for papers ordinarily selling at a cent.

Then came the candy butcher with bars of milk chocolate.

"Here you are. Get them while they're fresh. Twenty cents each." Regular price ten cents.

At the college town they had dinner at a boarding house.

Each man paid seventy-five cents

Rheumatism In Joints Pain Disappears and Swelling Vanishes in a Few Days

That is what happens if you use Rheuma, the wonderful remedy that Johnson's Drug Store and all druggists sell on the "money back if not cured" plan. There is a vast amount of rheumatism in this vicinity, and if you know any sufferer, call his attention to this generous offer.

Rheuma is a quick-acting prescription. You will know your rheumatism is leaving 24 hours after you take the first dose. It dissolves the uric acid and drives it from its lodging place.

Mrs. Alice A. Brown, Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "For seven years I suffered greatly with rheumatism in my hip; at night I was scarcely able to sleep. One bottle of Rheuma cured me."

That sounds miraculous, but Rheuma does miraculous things. Fifty cents a bottle of Johnson & Company and all druggists: (Advertisement.)

RUSHVILLE WINS TURKEY DAY GAME

After Being Played to Stand Still First Half Team Got Together and Scores 3 Times.

FINAL COUNT WAS 21 TO 0

The Rushville Independents ended the season yesterday with a win over the Arlington-Gwynneville combination team 21 to 0. A large crowd witnessed the game, which for two periods was a close battle. The Gwynneville team in the first half outplayed the Rushville team and a change in the backfield and a new determination to win resulted in Rushville counting two touchdowns in the third period and one in the last period.

Neither team scored in the first half and the attack and play of Gwynneville seemed to surprise Rushville. In the third period line smashes and end runs by Denning, Wooster and Gunning swept the Gwynneville team off its feet. Wooster played a star game and deserved a lot of credit as his playing added materially in the Rushville victory. The Indianapolis team that was to have played here cancelled at the last minute and the Arlington-Gwynneville team was secured. The team furnished good amusement for the fans and probably put up as good a game as the Indianapolis team.

TURKEY SHOOT A BIG SUCCESS

Fifteen Sportsmen Participate in
First of Three Holiday Events
Held Thanksgiving.

SIX TURKEYS ARE AWARDED

The shoot held Thursday at the country club grounds was a success and the promoters are looking forward to the next two, scheduled for December 24 and January 1. The scores in yesterday's events were not as good as they might have been as a strong wind was blowing directly in the face of the trap, putting the men at a disadvantage because of the smoke. Six turkeys were shot for, C. Stutz and Parry of Indianapolis getting two each and Earl Beaver of New Salem getting two. The scores were as follows:

	Broke	Shot at

C. Stutz	150	190

Unique Methods Used in Fighting Cholera Germs by Austrian Doctor

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD.
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Przemysl, October 28. (By Mail to New York)—The road from Vienna to the town in Galicia (name cut out by censor) where the Austrian "Kriegs-pressequartier" is established is a "great white way."

Jack London may tell of his "great white way" in snowbound Alaska. George Cohan may chant of his own "Great White Way" in New York. There are other "white ways" that are interesting. But this one outdoes them all.

Having called at the press headquarters in Vienna, received my instructions and then been formally accredited as a correspondent with the Austrian army, I received a summons to be at the depot at seven o'clock in the morning.

Before we had gone many miles I discovered that we were traversing a "great white way." First I noticed that a pile of coal at a wayside station had been whitewashed; "whitewashing coal" is an old joke at home and my sense of humor was struck immediately. I thought that perhaps a carload of lime might accidentally have been overturned on the coal. Then the matter left my attention until we came to another station. Here was another whitewashed coal pile. Then I noticed that the cement pavement of the depot platform and the cinder path ways between the tracks were also white. The whiteness was splashed everywhere. I saw it on poles and posts about the station yard, man-high. It was on the steps of the cars. It had been thrown on car wheels and even on car roofs!

The cholera! I was getting my first view of the many methods which the great medical men of Vienna are using to fight the tiny terrible germs which the Russian prisoners bring with them into Austria-Hungary. One minute germ may slay a townfull of humans and that one tiny germ must be found and killed. He's a deadlier foe than a Russian; deadlier than one hundred thousand Russians.

And so our "great white way" grew whiter and whiter as we neared Feldpost Number 39. But I was to see more of the cholera signs as I went on nearer the fighting ground.

Before we left Vienna a young lieutenant named Rado gave me some advice:

"You must be careful of your health," he said, "That's the chief thing. You will be obliged to submit to an injection of anti-cholera serum. It won't hurt you a bit and may do you much good."

The medical men of Vienna have so thoroughly instructed the Austro-Hungarian officers in the matter of taking preventative measures against cholera that the lieutenant who was acting as my escort was "Doctor-wise" about the disease and would not permit me to buy any food at the wayside stations.

"I have telegraphed ahead to a large town to have a good dinner brought to us on the train," he said.

We were dead hungry by the time our train drew into the whitewashed railroad yard but no dinner came to us. Instead there came a railroad official wearing a military cap.

"We have a cholera suspect in the depot," he said, "and we have closed the restaurant. You wouldn't want any food from it anyhow. It's better to go hungry."

We decided that it was better and we did. Just as the soldier believes that there is only one bullet out of all of the millions of bullets marked for him, so along the "great white way" you find yourself believing that out of the multitudes of cholera germs there is one that bears your name on his back and if you can only dodge him, you're safe. We went hungry for another two hours until we came to a station where no cholera suspect had been. I'm sure that American soldiers would not behave more intelligently or careful under the circumstances; in fact in Mexico I saw how soldiers disobey health rules with a recklessness that would mean almost certain death in Galicia now.

It was nearly midnight when we drew into the whitewashed yards of the town in Galicia (name cut out by censor.) Autos were waiting for us and our luggage and we made the last fifteen miles of our twenty hour journey wrapped in big blankets, speeding through the wintry air.

"These hills were covered with snow two weeks ago," explained the lieutenant "but a warm spell came and melted it."

The end of our trip was a small interior town where the Kriegs-pressequartier is established.

GOOD NEWS

Many Rushville Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby

"Good luck travels fast" and the bad back sufferers in Rushville are glad to learn where relief may be found. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with this tested remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Samuel A. Brown, R. R. 10, Rushville says: "I had a severe attack of backache and it got worse every day. Finally, the trouble got so bad that I could hardly raise my foot above the ground. When I stooped, I thought my back would break. Someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box. I was much surprised at the prompt way in which they stopped the trouble. In a few days I was free from pain."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Brown had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

New Treatment for Bronchitis Asthma, Catarrh and Head Colds

Vick's Vap-O-Rub Croup and Pneumonia Salve Relieves by Inhalation and Absorption. No Dosing.

When Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Croup and Pneumonia Salve is applied externally, the body warmth releases vapors of Pine Tar, Camphor, Thymol, Menthol, and Eucalyptol. These vapors are inhaled direct to the lungs and air passages where internal medicines can not go. They loosen the phlegm, open the air passages and stimulate the mucous membrane to throw off the disease germs. For catarrh and head colds melt a little in a spoon and inhale the vapors, also apply well up the nostrils. For asthma and hay fever follow the instructions given above and also rub Vick's well over the spinal column, thus relaxing the nervous tension. Vick's is not a "cure" for these diseases, but it has at least the merit of containing no harmful habit-forming drugs, and it is sold by all druggists on thirty days' trial. If it fails to relieve in your case, the purchase price will be immediately refunded.

For sore throat, tonsillitis, deep colds, and bronchial troubles, apply hot wet towels over the chest and throat to open the pores of the skin. Then rub Vick's well in and cover with a warm flannel cloth. The next morning the phlegm is loosened, head is clear, and, in addition, the absorption of Vick's through the skin has taken out that tightness and soreness. Three sizes—from 25c. up.

CAMPAIGN IS A WEEK OLD TODAY

In Every County Indiana Red Cross
Seals Are Being Sold by Local Organization.

FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

Plans Made in Several Counties to Employ Visiting Nurses Such as is Done Here Now

The Indiana 1914 Red Cross Seal campaign is one week old today. In practically every county from Lake Michigan to the Ohio River active local campaigns are being conducted for the sale of these cheery little holiday stickers.

Mail leaving Hoosier postoffices is bearing these little "bullets against tuberculosis" in constantly increasing numbers. Club women connected with the Indiana Federation, are taking greater interest than usual this year and in many counties, the sale is under the direction of an organization of women.

Plans already are being made in many counties for the employment of visiting nurses next year, such as is done here now. In other counties the Red Cross Seal money will be expended as, in the past, in extending relief to indigent consumptives, in preparing and distributing literature which tells how to prevent the disease and how to treat it, once it has been contracted.

Several Indiana counties are maintaining local tuberculosis sanatoria, others are educating the public through exhibits and other material which tends to arouse the citizens of the state to the need for concerted action against tuberculosis.

That all this work gradually is getting results, is shown by the statistics supplied by the Indiana State Board of Health. In 1909 there were 4,527 deaths from tuberculosis in this state. In 1909, 4,479; in 1910, 4,710; in 1911, 4,230; in 1912, 4,048; in 1913, 4,108. Despite the increase in population since 1908, there was a decrease of 419 in the number of deaths last year from tuberculosis in Indiana. According to Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University, this means a saving to Indiana of $3,352,000 annually. A great deal of this saving has been brought about by the careful expenditure of Red Cross Christmas Seal money. Everyone should buy the seals in unusually large quantities this year.

BRITISH ARE NOT SATISFIED

Explanation of Bulwark's Loss Yesterday by Admiralty Not Pleasing to Public.

SECRET INQUIRY IS BEGUN

All Advanced Causes Are Exhausted and Then People Turn to Their Submarine Theory.

(By United Press.)

London, Nov. 27.—Secret inquiry was started today into the blowing up of the battleship Bulwark off Sheerness yesterday when 800 officers and men were lost.

Naval experts are totally unable to explain the destruction of the Bulwark upon the theory that the explosion was accidental unless it was caused by deteriorated ammunition. That such could be the case however, is considered most unlikely because of the frequent tests made abroad the ship and the fact that the Bulwark's magazines were protected by all latest devices.

The spy and the submarines. Terrors ran rampant in London today. The contention of the admiralty that the explosion was certainly internal has by no means satisfied the public. Some of the papers criticize the authorities for the lack of vigilance about government docks. As all London has been wild upon the subject of spies for months it is insisted that German agents would have little trouble operating in some of the ship yards.

It is believed that the destruction of the Bulwark may go down in history as great a mystery as the blowing up of the United States battleships Maine in Havana harbor.

On the street, in the lobbies of the house of commons and in the admiralty offices, the destruction of the Bulwark was the sole topic of discussion today. Despite the assertions of the admiralty officials it is believed the warship may have been sent to the bottom by a torpedo launched by a German submarine or her magazines exploded by a spy or traitor.

That spontaneous combustion could have caused the terrible disaster is believed impossible. Whether there is enough left of what was once a battleship of 15,000 tons displacement to permit of a satisfactory investigation as to the cause of the explosion is considered doubtful. The Bulwark sank within three minutes. Some reports declare her hull is split in three parts. Her funnels and masts are said to be completely blown away. Wreckage was found six miles from the scene of the explosion.

—Mr. and Mrs. Will Jones of Franklin, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jabez Winship and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davis, left today for a visit at Milroy.

The funeral services of Jerry Laughlin, former resident of this city, who died in Indianapolis, will be conducted at the St. Mary's Catholic church Saturday morning at nine o'clock and burial will take place in Calvary cemetery.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Make-Believe.

For upwards of three-quarters of an hour of that golden morning which followed the night of his return to New York, Mr. Law was permitted to esteem himself the happiest of mortals. And inasmuch as this is not only a longer uninterrupted term of happiness than is humanly common but is more of that emotion than ordinarily leavens the whole of a lifetime, Alan was perhaps to be envied, even though disillusionment when it came was sudden, sharp, and to him unspeakably shocking—a swift, unpresaged plunge from sunlit peaks of supreme content to the black depths of a bleak Avernus of despair.

The beginning of the period was synchronous with the slam of a taxicab door that shut away a superfluous world from the company of two who loved.

The sound spelled safety as well as success in Alan's understanding.

The car slipped smoothly away from the curb, pursued only by a little gust of semi-ironic cheers from the little company of working men who had witnessed as well as measurably participated in the putative elopement from the house of Trine.

Vigilant for any indication that their evasion had had a witness in that strange home of deathless hatred, Alan watched it through the little window in the back of the cab until a corner blotted out the vision of it; then with a sigh of relief sank down by the side of the woman to whom his every thought, impulse and emotion were dedicated.

"Rose!" he whispered, and tentatively touched one of the hands that lay clenched in her lap.

She responded with never a sign to indicate consciousness either of his touch or his whisper.

And reminding himself of the strain imposed upon her by the experience through which they had just passed, Alan excused her unresponsiveness on grounds of reaction, and for the time felt constrained to let his sweetheart rest and regain her normal poise: there was bliss enough for him in the consciousness that he had won her safely away, that nothing now more than a short hour's drive across town and by ferry across the Hudson stood between them and the marriage that should prove the consummation of all their trials . . . Barring accident!

Alan had too often suffered the penalty of disappointment for over-indulgence in this failing of his for depreciating the unforeseen, not to make the mental reservation, "Barring accidents!" with a little shiver of dread.

Had any of Trine's household been cognizant of his daughter's escape, Alan argued, interference must have been instant.

Despite the reassuring aspect, the preoccupation of his companion so wore upon him that he was presently no longer able to refrain from disturbing her.

"Rose!" he begged again, closing a hand tenderly over hers. "Dearest girl, don't worry another instant! Do calm yourself: remember we are safe now; we fooled them handsily—thanks to your faith and bravery, sweetheart! and everything is going to be well with us from now on. Over in Jersey the minister is waiting now to marry us; and down at the White Star dock the boat is waiting that is to carry us off to England the moment we're married. Think of that—and that I love you. Nothing can possibly break the strength of that combination!"

For another minute she rested as she had ever since sinking into the corner of the taxicab—moveless, taut, unresponsive.

Then a long sigh shook her to her very heart, and of a sudden the small fist in Alan's grasp relaxed and her face turned to his like a flower to the sun, a face transfigured, its lips now soft and yielding, its eyes unclosed and smiling into his a smile all misty with unshed tears.

"Alan," she breathed gently. "It can't be true! I'm trying so hard to believe—but all the while I know it can't be true!"

He converted a skeptic with the mute eloquence of his lips.

Head upon his shoulder, the girl clung passionately to him. "Tell me again that you love me!" she prayed. "Promise me you'll never let anything come between us. Promise me, Alan—promise me you'll be kind to me always, dear!"

"Can you doubt I will be kind?" he murmured reproachfully.

"I am afraid . . ." she whispered.

"How could I be anything else, loving you as I do?"

"I am afraid . . ."

"Why should I be unkind to you?"

"It isn't that. . . . I'm just afraid."

"Of what?"

"Of losing you."

"But that can never be!"

"You can't be sure. What if you were to find you'd been mistaken?"

She caught her breath and added hastily—"That you didn't really love me, I mean."

"Oh, that's ridiculous!"

"I can't be sure. Nothing in life is permanent. What is love? Illusion of the senses! What is happiness? A will-o'-the-wisp! What is life? A make-believe!"

"Dearest!" He held her more closely still. "You are nervous and overwrought. You don't know what you're saying. You can't mean what you're saying. . . . But say that it's so—that life is all make-believe. Then make-believe you love me—"

"Oh, but I do, I do!"

"And make-believe for a little we've caught the will-o'-the-wisp—only for a little—until you wake up and realize that it's all real and true."

She closed her eyes again. "Yes," she breathed, "you are right. Let's make-believe it's all true for a little longer . . . and forget . . ."

He could by no means account for this strange humor; but he did his best to comfort her, none the less tenderly because of his mystification. And for a long time she let illusion blind her, resting quietly in his arms, making believe . . .

Only on approaching the Twenty-third street ferry they must needs rouse and sit apart constrainedly for fear some one might glance through the window and surprise their secret.

As if one needed the evidence of a caress exchanged to know that they were lovers, who had eyes to see the flushed loveliness of the girl shrinking back in her corner or wit to interpret the radiant happiness that shone in Alan's face as he bent forward and watched warily from the window.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Ring.

Theirs was the last vehicle to swing between the gates before these last were closed.

And this was quite as well; for Alan, rising for one last backward glance through the rear window, started involuntarily and choked upon an exclamation when he descried a powerful touring car tearing madly toward the ferry-house, its one passenger half rising from the front seat, beside the driver, and exhibiting a countenance purple with congested chagrin as he saw his car barred out of the carriage entrance.

Quickly sensitive to his emotion, the girl caught nervously at Alan's hand. "What is it, dear?"

"Marrophat," he snapped.

She uttered a hushed cry of dismay. "Don't be alarmed, however," he hastened to comfort her. "He's lost the race: the gates are shut—even the passenger gates—and there must be a company spotter somewhere near by, for the gateman is virtuously refusing to be bribed by a roll of money as thick as my wrist!"

At that instant the taxicab rolled aboard the ferry-boat; the deck gates were closed; a hoarse whistle rent the roaring silence of the city; winches rattled and chains clanked; and the boat wore ponderously out of its slip.

"So much for Mr. Marrophat!" Alan crowed, sitting down. "Foiled again! He can't stop us now!"

"Perhaps . . ."

"Why that perhaps? Why that tone?" he demanded sharply, struck by the foreboding her accents confessed.

"This isn't the only ferry. There's the Pennsylvania and the Lackawanna—and by hard driving he might even manage to catch the boat that connects with this from the Christopher street ferry of the Erie!"

"Impossible! I don't believe it! I won't!"

"Let's not," she agreed. "But, Alan . . ."

"Yes?"

"Promise me—if he should manage to catch up with us—you won't let him talk to you. I mean, don't let him—"

"No fear of that!" he assented hotly. "If he tries to exchange one word with me—I only wish he would!"

She seemed satisfied with that; but the incident had served appreciably to chill their spirits. They accomplished the remainder of that voyage in a silence that was no less depressed because they sat hand in hand throughout.

Nor was their taxicab three minutes out of the ferry house on the Jersey shore—though the chauffeur, stimulated by Alan's extravagant promises, was doing his best to fracture the speed laws and escape arrest—when the girl's fears were amply justified; a shout from behind drew Alan's head out of the window on one side and the girl's on the other and proved to both that Marrophat had indeed found some way to make the crossing without great delay.

His touring car was within fifty yards when they first were aware of it; and Marrophat, standing on the running-board, was shouting inarticulately and flourishing an imperative hand; while the distance between them was momentarily growing less noticeable.

As Marrophat's car drew abreast Alan nodded and said quietly: "Don't be alarmed; I can attend to this gentleman single-handed."

And this he proceeded to demonstrate with admirable ease, even though called upon to do so far sooner than he had thought to be—thanks to Marrophat's hair-brained precipitancy. For, failing to influence the taxi driver by shouted demands or threats, or to gain the least attention from Alan, Trine's first lieutenant abruptly and surprisingly took his life in his hands and in one wild bound bridged the distance between the two flying cars and landed on the taxi's running-board.

Stop! he screamed madly. "Stop, I say! You don't know what you're doing! Let me tell you—"

He got that far but no farther. In the same breath Alan had flung wide the door and was at the fellow's throat. There was a struggle of negligible duration; Marrophat was in no way his antagonist's match; within three seconds he threw out both hands, clutched hopelessly at the framework of the cab, and fell heavily to the street.

The taxi sped on without pause, its driver deaf to the hails of innocent if indignant bystanders. Alan pulled himself together and looked back just in time to catch a glimpse of a number of loafers lifting Marrophat to his feet and helping him to the sidewalk of an unsavory-looking tenement, before the cab took a corner on two wheels . . .

"Not seriously injured, I fancy," he told the girl in response to her eager look. "Worse luck!" he added gloomily.

But it seemed that he was to have greater cause than this to complain of his luck, before that ride was ended. Three blocks further on a fire blew out with a report like a cannon-cracker, and the taxi lurched perilously, hesitated, slowed down, and limped dejectedly to the curb.

Alan and the chauffeur piled out in the same instant, the one standing guard—with an eye out as well for another cab—while the other assessed damages.

"Nothing for it but a new tire, sir," this last reported sympathetically. "It must have been a broken bottle or something like that—it sure did rip the usefulness clean out of that shoe."

"Go to it," Alan advised him tersely; "and if you make a quick job of it, I'll stand the cost of the new tire."

"But if another cab comes along while you're at it you'll lose us as quick as a wink. Here's my card, in case we have to desert you in a hurry; you understand this is a matter of life and death, and I'll have no time to settle up with you. But you can call at Mr. Digby's office and he'll fix things up to your satisfaction."

The man took the card and after a drew in swiftly and easily and Marrophat, rising in his seat, leveled a revolver over the windshield and fired.

The crack of his weapon was practically coincident with a metallic thud beneath the rear seat of the taxicab.

Not for some moments did Alan appreciate the viciousness of the scheme. Surmising that the gasoline tank had been punctured by the bullet, he was inclined to believe that Marrophat hoped to stop the taxicab by depriving it, in course of time, of its fuel.

And with this in mind he was presently surprised, as the cab took a corner, to see Marrophat's car stop at that corner and Marrophat himself get down. The brow of a hill intervened, shutting off sight of the blackguard as he knelt and lit a match. It was the girl who gave the alarm, suddenly withdrawing her head from the window to scream at Alan:

"He's fired the gasoline! It's flaming along the street, following the line of the leak—and catching up with us!"

Without pausing to put his hand to the latch, Alan kicked the door open. "Jump!" he cried. "For your life—" house of modest and homely aspect. Two minutes more, and Alan was exchanging salutations with and making his bride-to-be known to Digby's good friend, the Reverend Mr. Wright.

Embarrassment worked confusion with the young man's perceptive faculties. As this moment approached when two should be made one who had gone through fire and flood, literally as well as figuratively, for each other's sake, incredibly drew a veil before his vision. He viewed the world as in a glass, darkly.

He was aware of a decently furnished minister's study; of two witnesses in the guise of unassuming womenfolk of the minister's household; of the Rev. Mr. Wright himself as a benevolent voice rolling sonorously forth from a black-clad presence; of the woman of his heart standing opposite him; of questions asked and responses made; of a ring that was magically conjured from some store apparently maintained against precisely similar emergencies; of a hand that took the hand that was to be his wife's and placed it in his; of his clumsy and witless bungling with the task of fitting that ring to the finger of his sweetheart's hand . . .

And then he was aware of a door that banged violently in the hallway; of the sound of a man's voice making some indistinguishable demand; that Rose's hand was suddenly whipped away, before he could fit on the ring; that the study door was flung open and that this animal of a Marrophat had precipitated himself into the room.

He opened his mouth to protest—and Marrophat silenced him with a cry.

"You fool! Drop that ring! Stop this farce! Don't you know whom you're marrying? That woman is Judith Trine, you idiot—not Rose!"

Blankly Alan turned to the girl. Her flaming face, her sullen eyes, her very pose, from which the manner of Rose had dropped like a cast garment, confessed the truth of Marrophat's assertion. And as if this were not enough, Judith confessed it doubly with a sudden outbreak of such rage as never could have been brewed in Rose's gentle nature.

"You devil!" she cried—and threw herself in front of Marrophat with a glance at the name touched his hat with more noticeable respect.

"That Woman is Judith Trine, You Idiot—Not Rose!"

"All right, Mr. Law," he agreed; "anything you say." And forthwith got to work.

The rapidity with which he completed the change of tires proved him an excellent chauffeur, an adept at his craft; but the delay was one disastrous for all that. It worked together with what Alan pardonably described as the devil's own luck to bring the touring car in sight at the precise moment when the chauffeur was cranking up and Alan on the point of re-entering the cab. And though they were off again before Alan could close the door, the attempt was hopeless from the start.

And yet—whether or not because Alan's distaste for interference had been too convincingly demonstrated—the touring car for the time being contented itself with trailing about fifty feet in the rear, while the taxi fled the tenement purlieus of the Hoboken waterfront and found its way into the broader streets of an unpretentious suburban quarter.

Not until they were well into the suburbs, with few dwellings near and no pedestrians to interfere, did Marrophat's purpose become apparent. Then, however—and it happened while Alan was looking back—the touring car jump! As soon as that flame catches up with the tank—"

Simultaneously the chauffeur, over-hearing, shut off the power.

The three gained the sidewalk barely in time: the tiny trail of flames, almost imperceptible in the sunlight, was not a yard from the jet that spurted through the bullet hole in the tank. In the flutter of an eyelash the explosion followed. Had the cab been loaded with nitroglycerin its destruction could have been no more absolute.

There was a roar . . . and then a heap of smoking ruins.

Without waiting to admire the spectacle, Alan caught the arm of the girl and hurried her up the street, at the same time calling to the chauffeur to follow. And chance brought them to the next corner as another cab, fareless, hove into view. Promising its driver anything he might ask, in or out of reason, Alan gave him the address, and helped the girl in.

If Marrophat pursued Alan could see no sign of him. The second car made better time than the first. Unhindered, and as far as could be determined, without being followed, it covered the brief remaining distance in a gratefully short lapse of time.

The suburb dropped behind a maze of streets where dwellings stood shoulder to shoulder and dooryards were scant. The car swept up to a corner spring as lithe as that of a leopardess. "Take warning now from me: keep out of my way forever after this—or take the consequences! God knows," she panted, "why I don't kill you as you stand!"

He was in her way, between her and the open door. She gave him no chance to move aside, but seized him so fiercely by the wrists that he instinctively lifted to protect himself, and she fairly threw him half a dozen feet from her. He brought up with a crash against the wall even as the door slammed behind the girl.

When Alan, the first to recover, gained the sidewalk, she was already in the taxicab. Whatever reward she had promised the man, he whipped his machine away as if from the fear of sudden death.

And darting from the house hard on the minister's heels, Marrophat leaped into his own car and, as if he had not heard her threat or received substantial proof of her earnestness, tore off in pursuit.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

And the Rose.

Taking the dazed young man by the hand, as though he had been a child, the Reverend Mr. Wright led Alan back to his study and established him in a comfortable armchair beside his desk.

"Sit there and compose yourself, my dear young friend," he insisted in a soothing voice.

At the elbow of the Reverend Mr. Wright a telephone shrilled imperatively. With a gesture of professional patience he turned to the instrument, lifted the receiver to his ear, and Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. P. W. LANSENG, Route No. 1, Florence, South Dakota.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

spoke in musically modulated accents. "Yes . . . Yes: this is Mr. Wright. . . Ah, yes, Mr. Digby. . . Not coming? But, my dear sir, Mr. Law is already here. I must tell you—"

He checked with a reproving glance for Alan, who was twitching his sleeve insistently.

"If you please," Alan begged, "let me speak to Digby at once. Forgive me—"

Reluctantly the minister surrendered the telephone.

"That you, Digby?"

"Alan! Bless my soul, what are you doing over there? Is Miss Trine with you? But how can that be possible?"

"Rose? No. What about her?" Alan demanded, stammering with anxiety.

"Why—one of my spies has just reported by telephone. He was going on duty this morning when he saw a young woman—either Rose or Judith—wearing a rough coat over boudoir dress—climb out of one of the basement windows of Trine's house. She was apparently in great distress of mind and anxious to escape without being seen from the house; but before my man—whose post of observation is in the third story of one of the houses opposite—could get to the street, she had been caught by several rough-looking customers, who rushed out of Trine's house, seized the girl, and made off with her in a motor-car bearing a New Jersey license number. I am sending men to watch the Jersey ferries. Call me up in an hour—"

Without a word of response, and without a word of apology to the Reverend Mr. Wright, Alan dropped the receiver, snatched up his hat, and fled that house like a man demented.

Rose, escaping from Trine's house, overpowered and made the captive of Trine's lowest creatures—gunmen possibly, of the stamp of that animal whom Trine had charged with the assassination of Alan the night before! There was neither a motor-car in sight for him to charter nor any time to waste in seeking one. Alan could only hope to find one on his way back toward the ferry. It must have been upwards of an hour before he came into a street which he recognized, by its dinginess and squalor, as that in which he had thrown Marrophat from the running-board of the taxicab.

And then, as he paused, breathless and footsore, to cast about him for the way to the ferry, a touring car turned a corner at top speed and slowed to a stop before that selfsame tenement of the unsavory aspect to whose sidewalk he had seen Marrophat assisted by the loafers of the quarter.

And this touring car was occupied by some half-a-dozen ruffians in whose hands a young girl writhed and struggled when, immediately on the stop, they jumped out and wrestled her out with brutal inconsideration.

Like a shot Alan had crossed the street—but only to bring up nose to the panels of the tenement door, and to find himself seized and thrown roughly aside by a burly denizen when he grasped the knob and made as if to follow in.

"Keep back, young fellow!" his assailant warned him viciously. "Keep outa this, now, if you don't want to get into trouble."

To the speaker's side another ranged, eyeing Alan with a formidable scowl. At discretion he stepped back and turned as if persuaded to mind his own business, then swung on his heel, caught the two in the very act of opening the door, and threw himself between them.

An elbow planted heavily in the pit of the stomach of one disposed of him for the time being. A blow from the shoulder sent the other reeling to the gutter. And Alan was in the tenement's lowermost hall—a foul and evil-odored place, dark as a pit the instant the door was closed, its murk relieved only by the flame of a kerosene lamp smoking in a bracket near the foot of the stairs.

Sounds of scuffling of feet were audible on the first landing. Alan addressed himself impetuously to the staircase, gaining its top in half a dozen leaps, and only in time to see a door slammed at the forward end of the hall and hear a key turned in its lock.

A cluster of men blocked the way. He didn't pause to wait for it to be cleared, but threw himself headlong into their midst, and by dint of the surprise had gained the closed door before they recovered and sought to stay him.

Indifferent to them all, he shook the knob and shouted: "Rose! Rose!"

Her cry came back to him, a muffled scream: "Alan! Help! Help!"

Backing away with a mad idea of throwing himself bodily against the door and breaking it down, he was suddenly confronted by a hideous mask of humanity—face of man all misshapen, bruised and swollen and disfigured with smears of dried blood and a dirty bandage round his temples, but none the less vaguely recognizable.

The words that streamed from its distorted lips drove recognition home. "Gee, fellers, look't who's here! If it ain't th' guy what threw me off'n that girder this mornin'. Stand back and let me kill th'—"

Without the hesitation of a heartbeat Alan swung heavily for the thug's jaw. The blow went solidly home. The man fell like a poled ox.

Pandemonium ensued. Rallying to their comrade, the ruffians attacked Alan with one mind and one intent. Murder would have been done then and there had it not been for a rotten banister-rail, which gave way, precipitating the lot to the ground floor of the hallway.

Simultaneously the lamp on the wall was struck from its bracket and crashed to the floor, its glass well breaking and loosing a flood of kerosene to receive the burning wick. The explosion followed instantly. In a trice the hallway was a lake of burning oil, and hungry flames were licking up the rotting wallpaper and eating into decayed baseboards and stair-treads.

Still fighting like a madman, contesting every foot of the way, Alan was borne down the hall and out of the front door. A scream of "Fire!" greeted him as he reeled out into the open. It was echoed by a dozen throats.

The doorway vomited men and women of the tenement. They choked it for a time, blocking both egress and ingress. By the time they broke out and left the way clear a solid wall of flame stood behind it.

Thrice Alan essayed to pass that barrier of fire, and thrice it threw him back. Then, struggling and kicking to release himself and try again, he was seized by a brace of able-bodied policemen and rushed fifty feet from the house before let go.

Lack of breath checked him momentarily.

He looked up, dashing from his smarting eyes tears drawn by the stifling clouds of smoke, and saw vaguely at the second story window a woman leaning out and shrieking for help.

That it was hopeless to attempt the staircase he well knew. "Drawing aside, he endeavored to come to his sober senses, and cast about for some more feasible way to effect the rescue of his Rose.

The tenement occupied one corner of a narrow street. Directly opposite, a storage warehouse stood upon the other corner. Before this last was the common landing stage for truck deliveries, protected by a shed-roof. And, suspended from a timber that peered out over the eaves, a hoisting tackle dragged the ground with its ropes.

It was the work of a minute to convince a thick-headed policeman that the attempt was feasible and should be permitted. It was the work of less than another minute to rig a loop in the line and fasten round his body beneath the arms. Volunteers did not lack; a couple of husky longshoremen sprang to the ropes at his first call. They heaved with a will. His feet left the ground, he soared, he caught the eaves of the shed-roof, and shouting to cease hauling, drew himself up on this last, backed a little ways down it and calculating his direction nicely, with a running jump launched himself out over the street.

The momentum of his leap carried him well out over the heads of the throng assembled in the street and truly toward that window where Rose was waiting. Then its force slackened. For an awful instant he believed that he had failed. But with the last expiring ounce of impetus, he was brought within grasping distance of the window sill.

Hauling himself up, he gathered her into his arms . . .

A great tongue of tawny flame licked angrily out of the windows as he swung her back to safety.

Go to Church! No Man Too Busy to Give an Hour Each Week to God

GO TO CHURCH!

Is there a man in any community who is too busy to spend one hour each week in church?

There are one hundred and sixty-eight hours in every week. No man is too busy to eat during the week. No man is too busy to snatch a few hours of recreation in every week. No man is too busy to sleep during the week. Yet there are men who will declare that they are so busy they can't afford to give one hour in every one hundred and sixty-eight to worship in God's house. In church you will find spiritual food and rest.

Of all excuses for lack of attendance at church the "too busy" one is the flimsiest. Why isn't a man honest and admit that he doesn't want to go to church? Isn't it a fact that a man has a better feeling within himself and the world in general after he has spent an hour in the house of God?

ONE OF THE FINEST SIGHTS OF THE LENTEN SEASON WAS THE NOONDAY CROWDS IN THE CHURCHES LOCATED IN THE BUSINESS AND FINANCIAL DISTRICTS OF NEW YORK CITY. THERE MIGHT BE FOUND SOME OF THE GREATEST MEN IN THE COUNTRY. IT IS A HOPEFUL SIGN OF THE TIMES. NONE OF THESE REALLY BIG MEN WAS TOO BUSY TO GIVE SEVERAL MINUTES DAILY TO THE WORSHIP OF GOD. INCIDENTALLY, THESE BIG MEN BY THEIR EXAMPLE PREACHED POWERFUL SERMONS.

Don't hide behind the "too busy" pretext. It is too thin. If you have an important business or social engagement you will find time for it. God asks you to meet him for at least an hour every Sunday. Can't you arrange your engagements so that you can meet him? The visit will not be a disagreeable one. Surely you are not ashamed to be seen in church? You no doubt have been seen in worse places.

HARD TO PICK H. S. CHAMPION

State Divided Into Three Sections
With Wiley High School of Terre Haute in Lead

HAPPY WANN THE REASON

On Comparative Scores His Team
Ranks Best With Kirklin and South Bend Next

BY TOAD ELLIS
(Written for United Press.)

Indianapolis, Nov. 27.—With all eyes turned away from the gridiron and towards the gym floor, let us pause a moment before basketball becomes the all-absorbent topic in the high school sport world and confer due honor upon the high school football teams of the state which have most noteworthy represented their various sections. Though it is impossible to choose conclusively a state champion, there is every indication that the Wiley high school team of Terre Haute, coached by N. G. (Happy) Wann is the strongest team in the state.

Indiana must be divided into three sections for the purpose of outlining its high school football teams. These sections are northern Indiana, composing a strip across the north; Central Indiana, west Indiana, composing teams along the southwest border from Terre Haute down to Evansville. The last named section has the strongest football teams. Central Indiana ranks next with Northern Indiana a close third.

The champions of these three sections are:
Southern Indiana—Wiley high school.
Central Indiana—Kirklin high school.
Northern Indiana—South Bend high school.
Wiley won its honor only after a very hard fight, and it is probable that Linton in this section is stronger than either Kirklin or South Bend. There are even less opportunities in Indiana for comparison between sections than in the nation college game for there are practically no inter-sectional games in this state, due to expense poor railroad facilities.

We reproduce here the schedules of these three sectional champions:

WILEY HIGH SCHOOL.
Wiley 60; Waveland 0.
Wiley 32; Coalmont 0.
Wiley 61; Jasonville 0.
Wiley 10; Robinson (Ill.) 34.
Wiley 75; Brazil 0.
Wiley 14; Jasonville 13.
Points scored by Wiley, 252; by opponents (Indiana schools) 13.
Linton was the only Indiana team scoring on Wiley. Wiley won by one point. It gives Wiley the championship of the section. Prior to this game Linton was considered a bit stronger.

KIRKLIN HIGH SCHOOL.
Kirklin 75; Kempton 0.
Kirklin 86; Elwood 0.
Kirklin 105; Broad Ripple 0.
Kirklin 26; Greenfield 13.
Kirklin 13; Brownsburg 0.
Kirklin 20; Sheridan 6.
Kirklin 40; Gosport 0.
Points scored by Kirklin 365; by opponents, 19.

Greenfield and Sheridan which scored on Kirklin are the strongest teams in their respective districts. Kirklin lays claim to the state championship, and there is no way of refuting the claim. However, we believe Linton and Wiley rank above Kirklin this year. Linton defeated Brownsburg 39 to 0, while Kirklin could only beat that school 13 to 0. This would indicate that Wiley, which defeated Linton, is stronger than Kirklin.

SOUTH BEND HIGH SCHOOL.
South Bend 69; Warsaw 0.
South Bend 13; Gary 0.
South Bend 14; St. Joseph (Mich.) 0.
South Bend 14; Elkhart 13.
South Bend 30; Goshen 3.
South Bend 24; Dowagiac, (Mich.) 6.
South Bend 32; Hamond 0.

Points scored by South Bend on Indiana opponents, 158; by opponents, 16. South Bend's victory over Elkhart was by a very narrow margin, but it must stand. South Bend admits that when the season started there was little hope that a winning team could be developed. There were only two veterans of last year and one of these was put by injuries earlier. South Bend has made a remarkable record under the circumstances, but can hardly rank with Wiley and Kirklin or with Linton.

No article of this sort would be completed without an account of the achievements of the Linton warriors. Here is the record of the Linton team:

Linton 19; Jasonville 0.
Linton 59; French Lick 0.
Linton 39; Brownsburg 0.
Linton 32; Garfield 8.
Linton 13; Wiley 14.

Linton scored 162 to her opponents' 32. The game with Garfield, the strong Terre Haute high school, shows a valuable comparison between Wiley and Garfield with the advantage for the former. The Brownsburg game is valuable showing a comparison with Kirklin as above mentioned.

Teams that rank well in Indiana are Greenfield, Sheridan, Elkhart and Rensselaer. Rensselaer has not played any of these leaders and its strength cannot be determined. Brazil high has put up a snappy game.

This article would not be complete without a word for Happy Wann, the vigorous coach of the Wiley team. Happy has inspired his men with pep from the start and has insisted on strict training rules. After the defeat at the hands of the strong Robinson, (Ill.) team Wann reads the law to his men with the result they braced against Linton. Wann uses college methods in coaching. He made the all-tate team at center in 1913 while playing with the championship Earlham team. Wann has coached many high school teams and always with success, but he says his team this year is the best and strongest bunch he ever handled.

HAD HYSTERICS AND FAINTING SPELLS

Asbury Park Woman Had Complete Nervous Breakdown—Restored to Health
by Vinol.

Asbury Park, N.J.—“I was in such a nervous, weak, run-down condition that I could not sleep nights, every little thing disturbed me, my appetite was very poor, and I was losing flesh. I was so nervous at times that I used to faint and have hysterics. I do my housework for a family of four, and they became alarmed at my condition. I tried beef, iron and wine and cod liver oil emulsions without benefit. One day our druggist suggested that I try Vinol and told me how it had helped others. I did so, and it has simply done wonders for me, as I am a well woman and entirely cured of my nervousness.”—Mrs. KATHERINE E. KLEIN, Asbury Park, N.J.

Such reliable testimony should convince others of the value of Vinol, therefore if you are worn out, weak and nervous and want new strength and more vitality, we ask you to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic. If it fails to benefit you we give back your money.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for all weak, nervous and run-down conditions of men, women and children.

Spinal Column, Where the Cause of Disease is Located

CHIROPRACTIC

(KI-RO-PRAC-TIC)

The scientific method of removing the cause of all disease by adjusting to the normal position the misplaced (subluxated) vertebrae of the spinal column. The subluxated vertebra cause pressure on the Great Trunk Nerves which emanate between them, thus shutting off the transmission of vital current from the brain to some organ or part of the body to which they lead, leaving it in a weakened condition, subject to disease, causing over 95 per cent of all sickness and suffering known to mankind. Chiropractic adjustments remove the pressure (the cause of disease), restores the vital energy and health returns. I use the hands only. I ask no questions; simply analyze the spine and tell you every place you are affected. Appendicitis Rheumatism, Nervousness, Asthma, Neuralgia, Deafness, Loss of Voice, Insomnia, Constipation, Bed Wetting, Headaches, Paralysis, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Goiter and affections of the Eyes, Nose, Throat, Lungs, Stomach, Liver, Spleen, (Heart), Bowels, Bladder, Kidneys and reproductive organs quickly and permanently disappear under Chiropractic adjustments properly given. Spinal Curvature quickly corrected. If you are sick or suffering in any way; if you have tried many physicians, specialists and medicines to no avail, then it is your plain duty to consult a chiropractor.
